God Damn the Middle Class! American Christianity is American Christianity. It's the toxic mix of "the American Way" and "Christianity." American Christianity is the new religion of the American Middle Class. It wasn't always that way. Have you ever wondered how bad things happen to good people? In modern America, it's carefully planned so someone can make money from your misery. I was raised to believe that Citizens have a right to expect government to carry out the will of the people. However, for nearly 20 years, I worked in the federal ministry charged with the mission to shape the public mind to accept corporate economic policy. Our best tools were Conservative values and Liberal ideals that most citizens think of as the American Way, plus the sharp teeth of judging borrowed from Christianity. Propaganda can be very effective. The mayor of my town invited middle class people to punish working class people on welfare; thieves who are morally, mentally and physically inferior. The middle class were deeply flattered and bought his message. Whatever happened to "all men are created equal?" Mayor Gleeson said; the prayer of the middle class is; "What's in it for me?" The middle class accepted that value as their highest ideal. At the federal level, we were told that "There is nothing wrong with children starving to death if they are not worthy of investment." That campaign was successful. The middle class accepted that health care and education are 'investments' that are best spent on middle class people and that working class human beings are worthless. American Christians gleefully allow their fellow citizens to starve, live in painful misery and go homeless; those misers are starving the working class; to hold onto their wealth. They don't give a damn about other Americans. As a federal Economic Development Officer, I saw that Middle class people actively create poverty for working class people because they genuinely believe that their class is morally superior. Middle Class Christians are happy to dress up their prejudice in Conservative values and flatter themselves that they have enlightened Liberal ideals. Clearly, despite their mansions and limousines, middle class Christians don't give a damn about Christ. Middle class people voted for millions of working class jobs to be exported to be done by the working class in foreign countries. When they asked, "What's in it for me?" they loved the idea of saving a few cents at Walmart. They didn't give a damn about working class people losing their jobs. I believe it's a sin for middle class people to export the jobs of working class people. I believe it's a sin for middle class people to actively create unemployment. It's a sin for middle class people to make working class people desperate. It's a sin to foreclose our mortgages and make us homeless. It's a sin for middle class people to deny working class people unemployment insurance, welfare, workers compensation while they enjoy fat bonuses, great benefits and high wages. It's a sin to starve the poor, make us homeless, destroy our health, and destroy any possibility of our children having a decent life. Heresy? Only if you believe that the middle class is sacred. Class! Class! Class! I have a very good reason for using words like 'god damn' and 'sin.'
